Hot From the Side Lines

Mr. Editor—

Being somewhat of a baseball fan, in fact a lover of any kind of sport—clean sport, and a fan who appreciates the efforts of sports in any town who are always willing to uphold the honor of the town they live in, in keeping the fact before the public that their home town is not dead, and trusting in doing so that the residents and fans will give them good support in their efforts.

Now in Clareholm, while the boys are winning we will admit that the fans are giving them good support as far as advice and cheering are concerned, but let the boys run into a bunch of hard luck, and I will admit I never saw a bunch of fans that could change as quickly. They stonewalled, cursed, and called them seventeen kinds of names, and in some cases even turn a bet against them.

Fans must remember that the boys in Clareholm are not getting any money in return for their services but are giving their time free, knowing that if they lose or pull a bonch, they will never hear the last of it, and that is worse, from men and boys who never played a game of any kind in their lives, but somehow have the idea that they know all about baseball, but of course never give the players a chance to criticize their playing. On the other hand let the team win or play good ball and how nice the fans become.

I have attended four games in Clareholm this season and was struck with the fact that the bench supposed to be for the players' use, is always occupied by the fans and the players sit in the dirt, certainly one of the ways of rubbing it in.

Now fans let us all pull together for the balance of the season, and boost the old game to the skies, and give the boys the chance they deserve for their unpaid efforts, and when things look black for them let us cheer louder, let us tear ourselves out of this selfish, unsportsmanlike rut, and support the old ball team to the last.

We now have a new manager, give him your co-operation, as the players swear to do, and we can have a good summer of baseball, but continue to grouse and growl, and act as you have in the past, and I am afraid that the baseball season will soon be over. Yours for good sportsmanship, A. Fan.

CALGARY EXHIBITION

In the program which will be presented at the 1921 Exhibition, to be held June 30 to July 8, the management considers it has the highest class and most entertaining features that have ever been secured for the Calgary Exhibition.

An attraction which will undoubtedly be the most popular for many years is the massed festival choir of 200 voices, composed of the five Calgary choirs which competed in the recent Musical Festival. The choral work at this festival was so good that one of the adjudicators, Dr. W. H. Hall, professor of choral singing at Columbia University, New York, said "the choral work at this festival has reached the highest mark I have ever heard in choral work on this continent."

A forty-five minute concert will be given each evening by the massed choir, accompanied by a thirty piece orchestra, which will include solos and other special numbers in addition to the choral numbers.

Another feature which will delight all Exhibition patrons, young and old, will be the fireworks. A remarkable display of aerial fireworks will be given, and in addition a reproduction of the Naval Battle at Dover. This will be given each evening following the regular platform program, which in itself would constitute a wonderful evening's entertainment.

The live stock and industrial exhibits this year promise to be exceptionally good, and the prospects are particularly bright for the best Exhibition that has ever been held in Calgary.

A Jolt To The Wheel

By Julia Logan Archibald

It really happened. There are people who would doubt it, and some say that the American stage is too well marshalled for such occurrences. But they never knew Cary Merle. And they never knew Kenton Gray. She could not be catalogued; he was too slim—slight and fine, too elusive and rare. She was only half American. Her mother had been a great Spanish dancer, whose stage career had ended when she married a southern aristocrat. Cary danced from babyhood. Teaching her was the only outlet for her mother's genius. Dancing was woven into the child's play; it was part of every mood—as natural as breathing. She herself did not dream how wonderful she was and her father's family frowned upon any trace of the mother's disapproved though glorious past.

Now she was alone, all her relatives dead. For a year she had been struggling in New York. She had gone to managers. She was not the usual dancing type—was not in their dictionary, and they would not even give her the opportunity to show she could dance. At last one of them, calculating her decorative effect, gave her a chorus job in the beautiful fantastic opera, "The Enchanted Road."

Kenton Gray was the composer and haunted every performance and every rehearsal with his kind, though weary smile. The opera represented blood and tears, and at last the bloom of life to him. He had had a sort of tragic existence until the tremendous success of this opera, and even now was not quite happy in its production.

The company was soon to sail for a London season—and Cary Merle, the premiere dancer, who was shortly to accomplish matrimony, Kenton Gray had never been pleased with her, though technically she was perfect, but as the weeks passed and no one was found worthy to take her place, the troubled look sank deeper into his eyes.

The company adored Cary. She made you feel you were somebody else, the person you always wanted to be. Nobody was jealous of her. She never got anything definite that any body else wanted. She just drifted, carefully shedding light for others to bask in. If men loved her, they never told her so. It was like loving an elf or a nymph—she seemed so detached, so intangible.

Kenton Gray had singled her out from the first—in an absent-minded sort of way. He used to call her to sit by him sometimes during long tireless waits. He talked to her about her old home in Charleston, her father and mother, and his mother was always quite fatherly. Her happy chatter seemed a little stifled with him.

The orchestra leader, Leon Valton, was a queer genius, a sort of protégé of Kenton Gray's. He and Cary were great friends.

"Why is he always so sad?" she asked one day when no name had been mentioned.

"Oh, I don't know," he said, "just the loneliness of genius, I suppose. And then he's troubled about the dancer. You see most people wouldn't understand. I don't think he understands himself, but he's put his whole idea of love into that role—the enchantress—and perhaps nobody will ever love to place him—unless, perhaps—well he's always so disappointed in it always."

"It's too bad," she said mistily, "he can't be happy in it—it's so beautiful. It's the enchanted road of life. Why, it makes me happy and I only a little spot of shyness alongside of it. Oh, if he only could!"

Then it was that the idea struck Valton. He had often played for Cary to dance, just for the sheer joy of it and he had a dim realization that her dancing was unusual, and perhaps he had a dim realization of something else too.

But now Valton's soul was stirred, and so it was he hatched the plot. Valton, the producer, was to sail for New York, two weeks ahead of the company. Some English dancer would be secured—of very doubtful quality.

Valton told Trix, who readily consented to be his accomplice. "But do you think she'll do it? Has she any nerve? She is about as practical as a frolicsome kitten."

When he went to Cary she looked bewildered, her lips trembling. Then she said she would. At seven-forty that night she was peering into a cracked mirror in the dressing room putting the last touch of make-up on the end of her lip-tipped nose. Later, out in front, she moved in a daze, but at Valton's robbing eye, she managed little thanks-believe smiles as she tripped at the end of her line.

The act was nearing the end. The chandelier was swinging down the stage preparatory to going off at the other side. Cary was the last of the line. The lights were lowered and the spotlight turned on for Trix's dance, but there was no Trix. (Trix could faint as casually as a Jane Austin heroine.)

Cary stood stock still until she was alone on the stage.

She was panic-stricken. She could not move until she saw Valton's face in the shadows and his hand beckoning her. She reached the spot of light in the centre. The stage manager was not all shouting at her from the wings. Valton's figure, in his box, stood up like a giant of darkness. A strange emptiness and stillness seemed to close in around her. And somewhere out in front she knew was Kenton Gray groping his way toward his own enchanted road.

Then the orchestra began to call for rising and falling in rhythmic melody. Cary's body began to sway with the music, as lightly as a flower bends on its stem.

The spotlight followed her, the stage director became quiescent, and Cary began to dance. Her face was alight with a soft, ecstatic smile, and the audience held its breath.

She began in a slow swinging motion, like the rising and falling, in circles of light of a bird, a little white night-gown all shimmer with silver-blue moonlight. Fountains of melody rose and swelled and burst in a myriad bright drops of ecstasy, and her little feet danced with the light exquisite patter of a fairy's foot.

Round and round she danced in widening circles. Now she became a gray-blue curling wreath of smoke aloft in low, wailing chords of sound. It was all in the night and somewhere were the moon and stars and cloudless sky, and the tinkle of fairy bells. Formless dreams floated into the hearts of those who saw it and pured upon a young and sinless world.

Her swinging grew to whirling and the whirling into swirling, until she became a mere scintillating spot, mad in a maze of color. At last, still upon her toes, with arm stretched wide, she skidded down the whole length of the stage; as the curtain went down, her head dropped and she sank into a heap before the footlights, drowned in her own glory.

They picked up the limp little form and bore it to the dressing room. The terrible storm of applause thundered madly, until the manager appeared with uplifted hand to say that Senorita Carita was indisposed. If possible she would respond during the last act, and on succeeding evenings, in one of her original dances.

It was fifteen minutes later that Cary opened her eyes and let them rest comfortably upon Kenton Gray's face, while the orchestra played bravely out in front. In ten minutes' way of his he was keeping the crowd away from her. She took him quite as a matter of course, and when he paused in the chafing of her hand and smiled to see her returning strength, she was glad he was no longer sad. She brushed back a lock of hair from his forehead, as if she had done it a hundred times before. Then she closed her eyes again.

He leaned nearer her, breathing fast. "Cary," he hurried, "Walton will be here in a few moments with a contract for you to sing 'The Sweetest Little Thing that God ever made. All I want is you! That's all I ever wanted. You don't need to dance for Walton. It's the buying and selling Heaven. Can't you—do you—love—"

Her eyes opened slowly. "Oh, yes," she said languidly, "I do, I have all along, of course. That's why I—I didn't mind joggling the wheel of fate a little."

For British Preference

Reasons Why Canadians Should Buy Within the Empire.

"The new Budget has made it more advantageous than ever for Canadians to buy British goods rather than those of United States manufacture," declared Captain Evan J. Edwards, senior British Trade Commissioner in Canada, in a recent interview in Montreal.

"It will also be a big help to agents and business houses who prefer to do business with the Mother Country, and within the British Empire. Sir Henry Droyton, Minister of Finance, in his speech when introducing the Budget, pointed out the business with the United Kingdom continues to be satisfactory, imports from these having risen from $126,329,229 in 1919 to $124,920,846 in 1920, with the added satisfaction to Canadian buyers and consumers that their dollar is at a premium in the English market, as against a discount in the United States.

"A section of the Budget which will assist very materially in the clause requiring customs duty to be levied on the invoiced value of goods after taking the rate of exchange into account. At the desire of business interests throughout Canada, customs regulations drawn up several months ago made it compulsory for this to be done with European goods, but for certain reasons no similar requirements were made on imports from the States. The result is a considerable advantage to importers of American goods, so much so, that in many cases with a high rate of exchange it amounted to a quite substantial reduction of the protective customs tariff, and sometimes did away with the preferential tariff given to products of the Empire.

"Now American manufacturers will rank the same as those of any other country, and the Canadian dollar, and I believe the effect will be not only to encourage British trade, but to assist considerably in re-establishing the equality of trade between Canada and the States, and bringing back to its fair value the Canadian dollar, which is improving so slowly that still it is worth only some ninety cents in the States.

"Sir Henry Droyton says—and it is true—that there is no doubt that including those Canadians and Americans who are interested in pouring into this country quantities of American manufactures—that Canada, to save herself from financial bankruptcy, must buy less from the States, of products which can be raised or made on this side of the line, or in the United Kingdom.

"With the new aids to Empire trade, derived from Sir Henry's latest Budget, a saving of often from thirty to forty per cent to the Canadian consumer can be shown by buying Empire products instead of American, and as Britishers, it is not necessary to remind Canadians that there are few lines of goods in which Old Country quality is not superior to that of the American article.

"Canada's own products can be far better than those of any other country," insists Captain Edwards, whose many years' experience in big business in the Old Country and the other Dominions add much weight to his statements. "More aggressive selling campaigns by our own manufacturers, perhaps a willingness to spread present heavy overhead charges more thinly over a bigger production by price reductions, and more reluctance on the part of Canadian buyers to be cajoled by the wiles of the American salesman in our midst, would all assist Canada in getting financially on her own feet."

The Home Of No Trash

BY LORETTO C. LYNCH

An Acknowledged Expert in All Matters Pertaining to Household Management.

Most homes contain little or much trash. And it is not until one starts to move or houseclean that she discovers how many useless things she is harboring.

A bide of a year came to me the other day with a confession. Said she, "This housekeeping job is not what I story writers would have us believe. I work just all the time—and you simply have to work all the time if you are to keep your home in good order."

She invited me to her home of seven rooms and bath.

Our entire room was devoted to What Nots and other trash. It was termed "The Den." And it was laden to capacity with things from a miniature of Cleopatra's Needle to the proverbial, but decidedly realistic, anchor.

To make it a trashless home, it would have been necessary to get rid of nine-tenths of the ENCUMBRANCES in that Den.

But there is another type of trash hanger. It is the home in which everything of no use is relegated to the unending bathroom or guest room or kitchen or attic.

Every housewife recognizes in her heart that there is trash of some kind in her home. Why doesn't she get rid of it? For, it takes REAL courage to resist the heart throbs that comes to the born hoarder when she parts with that worn-out washboard when she makes off with the mangle hairbrush, the peeling mirror, the stained umbrella, the headless doll, the tripe doormat, the time-worn brass teaspoon and the cracked plate.

In contrast to the home cluttered with trash, let me tell you about a really beautiful home. At first you wonder why you felt such a sense of restfulness. And soon you began to realize that the charm of this home was due in great measure to its lack of furniture and furnishings.

As you entered, you came into the reception hall. On either side of the fireplace was a built-in bookcase. There was one large, delightfully round divan, a built-in window seat, a willow armchair. And you looked at the vivid Indian rug on the floor and your eye wandered over unnumbered wall space until it rested on one exquisite, soul-stirring picture. And you just sank into a restful attitude and wished to stay long, long in this charming room.

Here housekeeping was just like playing house for it was a trashless home.

Clareholm Review.

I am asking for a small space in your paper to mention a few facts which have happened in Clareholm within the past few days and which will have its effect on the U. F. A. organization for some time to come.

As a member of the U. F. A. I am very sorry indeed that at the first attempt to put a candidate in the political field and even before the U. F. A. was organized into a political body, the city method of running an election that we have been trying to stamp out for years past began to show up in its small fashion.

A convention to elect delegates was held in Harrison hall, Clareholm, which all the members were supposed to attend, but the greater majority did not get notice. This in the first place, is not even business as I for one, a member in good standing, did not know anything about the convention until Monday morning.

Surely the time is not that short that the business of our Local has to be rushed through in a haphazard manner. I understand that a ticket was formed by a party or parties in Clareholm and who are not even farmers and passed on to some of the delegates who were in attendance so that they would know the way to cast their vote in order to be sure that there would be no slip made when it came to nomination day. This is where I see a great injustice to a great number of U. F. A. members as it looks very much as if the gentleman who framed this ticket had no confidence in his fellow farmers. If this is the case then the U. F. A. organization is in a very bad way.

I also want to mention the very devil stunt of the president of the Clareholm local who holds the record for changing his mind. After giving Mr. Sherman (who opposed Mrs. McKinney) a clear sheet for honesty and integrity he then proceeded in a very crude way and in a most scathing fashion to tear his reputation to pieces, even hinting that Sherman has no right to even speak to a government minister in matters pertaining to roads or culverts. I have always been a member of this Local and in good standing, but I am going through until our business can be put on a basis that no one need be ashamed of.

Member.

On Monday last Robert Gardner the U. F. A. candidate running in the (Burgess) election in Medicine Hat, won out by a majority estimated to be about 8000, though complete returns are not yet available. The Meriton government candidate Col. Nelson Spencer lost his deposit.

The Home of the Big Tyee

Tyee Salmon caught at the mouth of Campbell River, Vancouver Island.

On the rim of the world in West [this stream, the Delta of Derwent] and many of his predecessors have spent a holiday here, and King George himself, when he was in British Columbia, caught some rain low beauties in this famous water. The river itself is over twenty miles in length from the lake to the sea, and has numbers of splendid "reaches" and good pools. Indeed, guides are a necessity. These falls will take the canoes up the river for you, and you may travel up by motor and come down the stream with them. Fine steelhead are caught here in the fly in the winter and early spring months, and after the first (reaches) in the spring the rainbow and cut-throats begin to run, affording sport to the fly fisherman all summer until the river gets too low. Some Dolly Vardens are also to be had. All the mouth of the river—Cowichan Bay—salmon run winter, spring and fall, some especially large ones coming in during the latter season.

But the most thrilling sport of all is to be obtained at Campbell River, the stream which for the present marks the northern boundary of the transcontinental highway, and which is situated about "two days' easy" motor drive from Victoria. The "amused" River takes its rise in the mountain lakes in the interior of the island and comes pouring and roaring down to the sea, as noisy and impetuous as a wild beast suddenly unleashed, except for the spots where it widens out into the Cannoodine lakes, and here a vast and fully serene as the blue sky itself. Eight miles in from the mouth it flows down a great cliff to find another bed for itself over a hundred and fifty feet below. The falls here, are among the most magnificent to be found in the West. All along the Campbell River, where the current permits, is fine trout fishing, but it is not the joy of landing the stockied beauties which brings most fishermen to this stream.

During the months of August the magnificent species known as the big "Tyee Salmon" (King Salmon) come to the mouth of this river on its way to the spawning bed; and to appreciate just how endlessly exciting fishing can really be, one should see what goes on here at the height of the season. The fish run up to sixty pounds and over, and it is no uncommon sight to see a half a dozen boats all playing tyee at the same time. The water itself is never quiet, for here you feel the current of the bottom river, and the swell from the sea. Add to this the noise of men and women shouting, your own line singing in your ears, the boat laid over almost on its side from the pull of the heavy fish fighting for its life, and you have enough "thrills" to make you remember the occasion. Many is the time that the fisherman from a half hour to an hour's hard work before he is finally gaffed.

The traps and seines of the commercial fishermen are threatening the magnificent rivers of British Columbia, and the Government is endeavoring to cope with this menace. At present the case is before the federal authorities, and lovers of the sport of fishing will be glad to be informed as will preserve our fisheries for all time to come. — N. J. Bertrand, Seattle.

High Average Mileage.

Sometimes you find a tire that gives extraordinary mileage—one in a dozen perhaps. Whereas the average of mileage given by a dozen—or a hundred—Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" will be as high as that given by the exceptional ordinary tire.

It's the high average that counts—that cuts the cost of miles—that makes it worth while to get Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" instead of ordinary tires.

True Bear Stories

By OGE-MAS-ES (Little Child).

(Copyrighted)

An old Indian friend of mine named Robert Bear (with living), with whom I passed the spring on two neighboring stages in the wooded lands of the lower Saskatchewan many years ago, used to chat with me over his hunting experiences round the camp fire; and sure fire being built on a clay bastion, on the poles which formed the floor of each stage, and I have known the water rise very close to the floor, but this only for a short time, and when the ice had jammed at the elbow of the Big River.

Robert was a sincere Christian and a devout member of the English Church which has done so much for the work among the Indian tribes of the Northwest. His grandmother was, it is said an Esquimaux, while he was born and brought up amongst the swampy Creeks of the lower Red River section. At a splendid big game and fur hunter, he was remarkably cool in moments of danger as the following incidents will show.

At my request for a story one evening, Robert said, "I was in the employ of the Hudsons Bay Company at Fairford Post, since my grandfather had taken command, and the express there had occasioned to send a messenger of importance to Fort Garry, this I was to take alone and out, and I decided to strike a direct course through the bush and swamps. It was in the spring of the year, and I was travelling light; a H. B. blanket 3 point; two spare pair of moccasins; a single barrel lead lock gun; tomahawk and scalping knife with some tea, tobacco and matches made up the outfit. I took no provisions, but would depend on game killed en route. The distance roughly speaking was about 160 miles, and on my second morning out I started as usual at the first peep of daylight, and after an hour or so walking came out on the bank of a small round lake, about a long stone throw across; on the other side directly opposite were two black bears standing on their hind legs and wrestling. I at once stopped a trading bullet on top of the black charge in my gun, opened my gun and tapped the stock to show the powder well up; just as I was occupied in this the bears dropped about four feet, looked across at me and each taking different directions started at a clumsy gallop round the lake. One thinks quick in the moment of kind and I was not prepared with my single barrel to meet both bears at once so I started to run and meet one of them, he came on me, and when within a few feet I fired and killed him, and then with my foot on his body I leaped as quickly as possible, but one too soon, and the other bear was very close; taking careful aim I fired and killed him dead within a few minutes. And then, Robert, what did you do?"

I knelt down and thanked God for mercifully preserving me, and then there was a lesson from an Indian, how few white men would have thought of their Maker. Well, my hunt was a good one, and the bears were both young males and in prime condition. I decided to camp for a while and dry the skins so that I could put them in my pack and it was then pocket money in Fort Garry; while the skins, after being carefully scraped, were drying. I cut a quantity of the meat up in thin strips and hung on stakes in the smoke, this meaning grub for the trip. There was still a quantity of meat over, and I did not want to waste the good food; fortunately there was a muskox close and on pulling upon a lot of moss I came to ice and on that I piled up the meat, then placed heavy logs over the cache to keep off Mr. Wolverine.

This was the only exciting occurrence on the trip, but the next evening I struck a small Indian encampment and was received with the greatest hospitality as usual and in return I directed them to my bears meat cache and told them they were very welcome to the meat. Many years after this Robert moved with his family to the south branch of the Saskatchewan and located on a small farm, where there I have known would go on extended hunts in the winter and crop his land in the summer. About the same time or a year or so later I had started for trading in the Stony Creek district (now McElroy), and on a trading trip to Chuk-was-poo (now Wapiti) we age-mo-wi was offered a pair of three black bear skins and at once inquired what happened to the rest of the skins. Their story told me by Ne-soo-pa-tin-ey-wah, was that a huge old grizzly had wandered in from the plains (and not hibernating) and the local hunters had found the winter dens of these unfortunate, dug them out, feasted on the meat and thus mutilated the hides; he had followed the track for some distance northwards and then dropped it. In the meantime the news of Mr. Grizzly's arrival had spread far and wide as they were rare visitors in the north country; Robert Bear was one of the first to hear of it and never having shot a grizzly he determined to track him if at all possible.

He was, I think, some three days on the trail, a mere day before with a single barrel gun, axe and knife, but at this date perdition locks had replaced the old-time rifle, and after considerable circling he found the trail continued at the mouth of the Forks; the bear crossed the river here and took to the dense bush. He finished the freshened and Robert stopped, overhauled his gun, replaced the cap and then with a determination that it was either him or the bear, he fired. The bullet hit the bear in the chest, and he waited for a favorable wind, and then, stepping like a ballet dancer, he crept along the trail.

Forestry Chapter Than Chewing Gum

Small Sum Spent For Maintenance of Branches

Canada's total expenditures on forest protection are about twice our face powder bill.

To any Canadian who may protest that the allotments of money for forest protection by any government or private interest appear excessive, let him consider the fact of the bill the Canadian people cheerfully pay for their everyday luxuries.

For it means that the deficit now being spent on face powder and perfume is $10,000,000. The bill for ice cream comes for juvenile Canadians is larger than the total amount spent on forest protection in the Dominion.

The national bill for cigarettes alone is over $23,000,000, and for cigars over $12,000,000. When any complaint is heard that the nation is paying too much for the maintenance of forestry branches, let him be considered that all such expenditure bulked together barely come up to the national outlay for the single item of chewing gum.

Glowing Stories From Oilfields

Party From Fort Norman Tell of Richness of District

A party of men have reached White Horse, Y.T., from the Fort Norman oil fields with glowing stories of the richness of the district. The trip was made in a few days, and the return was made in 60 days, including a six-day stop at Fort Norman. There were no hardships on the trip, and the party returned with 35 dogs with which they started.

Members of the party reported that one well 50 miles below Fort Norman was recently capped out a heavy pressure.

Fewer than 100 claims have been staked to date, it is reported. Three trading posts at Fort Norman supply the district with provisions, there being a plentiful supply of everything except salt.

Representations have been made to Ottawa to permit applications for claims to be made by the local agent at White Horse in order to save the long trip to the recording office in Edmonton.

The Elusive Maid

Joan believed in open and frank friendship with young men, without any sentimentality. One young man gave her an address amount of trouble.

One evening he picked up courage and wrote her a love letter. He signed it "John." She replied, with a laugh: "Good heavens! Who'd have us, old thing?"

The Mightiest Jaws

A Great Police Force

Royal Canadian Mounted Stand High in Estimation of West.

The Federal Government was high in announcing in parliament that the identity of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police would be retained. The west notes the mounting police and the great work of the force is a matter of more than pride with all true westerners. The eastern members of parliament can never appreciate how the Riders of the Plains have helped build the west make Canada and the pride of the foundations of the empire.

Old timers of the west do not need to be told what the mounted police mean to Canada, and many new Canadians have appreciated the public deeds of the superb force, while others can but guess at the private work of the body that has made it almost the only known representative of law, order and justice in the far-flung outposts of this part of the British Empire.

Every police force in the empire stands so high in the estimation of the law-abiding west as the mounted police. No other body of police is such a terror to the evil-doer; the pride of the force in itself, in doing the great or grave things that had to be done, is justified. The swiftest of the east can never realize that the mounted police aided them in sitting down their chairs, for they were the west knows—and so do the evil-doers. From the Brandon Sun.

Germany Supplying Houses For France

Defeated Nation Going Into Portable Dwelling Business.

According to the Ministry of Liberated Regions, Germany will soon commence the building of twenty thousand wooden houses to be erected in the devastated zone of Northern France. The dwellings in question will be somewhat similar to the portable houses seen in Canadian summer resort camp colonies, but they will be built of wood.

There is something particularly ironical in this Paris announcement and its relation to British Columbia. For it means that the defeated nation will be quick to seize upon the possibilities alone of the wooden house in Europe. And very properly grab it. A tremendous business is being done in this province more than twelve months ago. If Germany gets a foothold in the announcement, we may expect her to take the portable house business of Mesopotamia, Palestine and the rest of the world.

Oldest Twins Win Ten Dollars

Men 87 Years Old Take Prize at Musical Comedy.

Twins, 109 years of age, 218 brothers and sisters, mostly brothers, thought it was time to go to the "Two Little Girls in Blue," featuring the Fairbanks pair of girls at the George M. Cohan Theatre, New York. In response to the announcement of a $10 gold piece awarded the oldest pair who would come to the performance of the musical comedy, Emanuel and Leopold Klein, who were crossed the Eastern River and took away the chief award for being 87 years young and active. Seats were given to them in a stage box, and with them were Mrs. Jennie Cohen, twin sisters, aged 78 years, and William and James Farmer, 75 years old, both Civil War veterans. The other twins filled the remainder of the boxes and many seats in the orchestra.

An Unsinkable Plane

Novel Craft Is Designed For English Channel Service

One of the latest ideas for the continental air service is an unsinkable airplane. It is being constructed by the Staghorn Airplane Company of Edgewater. The buoyancy is obtained by an inflated air balloon fixed to the rear of the aircraft, and the tail. It is figured that this will keep the machine well above water level in the event of an accident. In the rear of the machine is a sliding emergency door through which travelers would be able to escape.

The innovations do not interfere with the speed of the machine, for it will make 120 miles an hour.

Villa's Big Harvest

Formerly Bunk's Has Changed From Destruction to Production.

Everybody interested in the prevalence of peace and prosperity in Mexico will be pleased by the statement that the Villa, formerly a leader of bandits in the Southern Republic, expects to harvest 50,000 bushels of wheat on the large farm he has acquired by the government. He has not actually turned his arms into agricultural implements, but he has changed from destruction to production, and, with the aid of modern farming tools, is apparently achieving a success that will redound to his credit. In other words, it is soon as the Villa is now raising grain instead of raising "Cain." From the Christian Science Monitor.

Where Age Is Respected

Turks Work As Long As They Are Capable.

Old age makes itself respected in Turkey by a capacity and willingness to work. A certain Murad, employed as a messenger by the Turkish telegraph office, was offered a pension when he reached his 120th year. He refused it, as he meant looking for work, but his superiors insisted he must make room for younger people who otherwise could not work, and would have no chance to get on in life.

Murad finally agreed to quit provided his young son was taken in his place. This seemed fair and he was told to bring the son around. The son presented was a white-haired man more than 70 years old.

Conservation of Soil Is Necessary

Time Has Arrived To Give Matter Serious Consideration.

Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture for Saskatchewan, speaking at the agricultural conference at Saskatoon, said: "It is significant that the need for conservation of our soils has been pointed out for years past by our leading agriculturists. In a report of the Experiment Farm at Indian Head back in the eighties, Mr. Maczey indicates that we must look forward to the time when we shall put back into the soil some of the ingredients which were being taken out through the production of crops. We must look concerned with the greater production of grain, however, that nature's warnings, in the form of drifting soil, have not received the attention which they deserve and I am of the opinion that the time has arrived when in many sections of the other parts of the province we must give this matter serious consideration."

Their Suggestions.

As to the advice which he emphasized a large sum and his employer asked advice as to how he should deal with it.

"Get rid of him at once," advised an Englishman.

"Keep him and deduct the sum from his wages," said a Scotman.

"But," said the employer, "the sum is far greater than his wages."

"Then raise his wages," suggested an Irishman.—Tit-Bits.

Butter Produced in Saskatchewan

Less than fourteen years ago the creameries in Saskatchewan produced less than 100,000 pounds of butter. Last year more than 6,000,000 pounds of creamery butter was made in Saskatchewan, the output having doubled every three years since 1905.

Indian Treaty Party Travel To Far North In Modern Houseboat

Ready To Market The Wool Clip

Warehouses Opened at Regina and Portage la Prairie.

The Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, Ltd., are making arrangements for handling the 1921 wool clip of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and as was the case last year they have decided to operate two wool receiving warehouses, one at Portage la Prairie, Manitoba, and the other at Regina. These warehouses will be open to receive wool and sheepskins from June 1 to August 15, and upon request, woolbacs and paper twine will be sent out to contributors from these points. All correspondence will be handled from the Regina office.

The company on request, in addition to forwarding woolbacs and paper twine to contributors, will also forward sufficient Cooper's Dip, kerosene powder or liquid, as desired, to dip their fleeces, the cost being deducted from the wool returns. All wool should be shipped to reach the company's warehouse either at Portage la Prairie or Regina, between June 1 and August 15. The wool will be shipped in car lots from the above points in original sacks to the central warehouse at Weston, Ont., where it will be graded by experienced graders.

The wool provided by the Dominion Government and weighed by a Dominion Government weighmaster. It has also been arranged that on request from the producer, an advance payment of approximately two-thirds of the market value of the wool will be paid just as soon as the wool has been graded, the wool being sold when in the opinion of the manager, it is profitable to obtain market value and as soon as it is all sold, final returns will be paid to the producers, who will be paid everything realized from the sale of the wool less the actual cost of marketing, as provided by the bylaws of the company.

Increase In Dairy Products

Valued at Half Million Dollars Over Previous Year.

Percy E. Reed, dairy commissioner for Saskatchewan, is responsible for the statement that there was an increase of 40,000 pounds in the creamery output in the province in 1920. The total value of dairy products for the year in the province was estimated at over $23,000,000, an increase of about half a million dollars over the previous year. There are now 100 creameries operating in the province, 44 of these having their butter graded by the provincial graders. Over half a million pounds more of government graded creamery butter was sold in 1920 than in the previous year.

Truth-Telling Tommy.

A woman decided to give a house party. She had recently bought a new dress and was showing it to one of the visitors when her little son came.

So engrossed was the hostess in pointing out the good points of the hat that for a few minutes she did not notice the arrival of the little son.

"Tommy," she said, crossly, "what did I buy this hat for?"

"For $2," retorted Tommy, "but you said I wasn't to tell anyone."

Austrian Sells Child For $10.

General indignation has been aroused in the town of Ried, in the province of Austria, by the action of George Erlicher, a well-to-do butcher, who sold in an inn his four-year-old son to a horse dealer for 10,000 crowns, now equal to about $30.

In another inn Erlicher publicly offered his two other children for sale, asking the same sum for each.

Kaiser's Peace Terms.

A document is said to have been found in the German archives in which the former Kaiser outlined the peace terms that he intended to impose if he had won the war in 1917. They included an indemnity of $40,000,000,000 from the United States.

It was also stated that the Kaiser sympathized in their resistance to reparations.—Buffalo Express.

Why

POWER

is making a special offer to the publishers of this paper and the readers. The Publishers of

wrote to us as follows:

"People have asked us how we can afford to make this exceptional Special offer to some of the weekly papers in the West. The reason behind the offer is that we want to get away from the necessity of expending subscription solicitors. There may be good subscription solicitors, but we haven't found them yet. So many subscription solicitors have a practice of offering fake premiums and other false inducements to get Western farmers to subscribe for periodicals of all kinds that the last class of farmers will not have anything to do with them."

The Canadian Power Farmer wants only good practical farmers on the subscription list and we do not want, and will not in the future, employ subscription agents—other than people who live right in the district and who can be trusted. It is to give publicity to this fact and to get the farmers of Western Canada to cooperate with us in knocking out fake subscription schemes that we have joined up with the weekly papers in this Special offer.

Stewart Administration

Promises AND Performs

VERY little serious criticism has ever been leveled at the Stewart administration. This is because, in accordance with the eternal principles of Liberalism, it has dealt fairly and justly by the people. It has given uniformly good government of a constructive kind, unhampered by considerations of political expediency, and always with the view of public betterment. It has stood for the square deal for everybody in everything. Its record has withstood successfully and with dying colors the acid test of the keenest possible public criticism.

Alberta's Upward Progress

No greater tribute to the Alberta government could be paid than that offered by Mrs. H. M. Edwards, of Macleod, president of the provincial council of women, who, in the preface to the first and second editions of her book on "The legal status of women in Alberta," says that "the women of Alberta are more favored in regard to legal status than are those of any other province in Canada." Such a tribute might justly be applied to all classes in the province, for the legislative record of Alberta's Liberal governments has been one of consistently upward progress, many of the enactments placed on the statute books having been adopted by other progressive governments of Canada and elsewhere.

For Rural Districts

Although the needs of urban communities have been well looked after, the legislation enacted for the special benefit of the rural parts of the province is of striking importance. The appropriation this year for roads, bridges, and ferries is five two and one-quarter million dollars, making a total appropriation for that purpose in five years six and one-quarter million dollars. The province has been covered by a network of telephone lines, so that now even the most remote districts are in almost instant touch with populated centers. When unfavorable seasons were experienced in certain portions of the province, the government did not hesitate, but paid out nearly one and one-quarter million dollars for seed grain, food, and other relief. The "Cow Bill" has been wonderfully successful in enabling farmers

THE STEWART GOVERNMENT today stands behind an imposing record of legislation, created during the last fifteen years, that has truly met the needs of all classes of people in the province. The opening up of the great north country; the provincial guarantee of irrigation lands; the guarantee of the bonds of drainage districts; the strong, systematic and successful effort to obtain wider markets for Alberta coal; legislation along practical lines directly affecting labor, including the workmen's compensation act; the gigantic strides in health legislation—all these stand as monuments to the progressive policy of the government, and prove that, as a result of the Liberal regime in this province

Alberta Has the Most Beneficent and Far-Reaching Legislation of any Province in Canada

Largest Canadian Atlantic Ship

THE EMPRESS OF SCOTLAND.

The largest liner ever assigned to the St. Lawrence route since it was seen that the make her initial appearance at Quebec. The liner was built in 1906 and was especially designed for the New York service. The Empress of Scotland will not be ready this season on account of the delay arising from the big strike in the ship yards there. The new Empress of Scotland is 25,000 gross tons. The liner will after the armistice, under the Canadian flag from Liverpool to New York. She is a first, second and third class carrier with luxurious cabin equipment. The liner was built in 1906 and was especially designed for the New York service. The Empress of Scotland will make her first sailing from Quebec on August 11. The new liner is the largest in the Canadian Atlantic service. Her dimensions are: Length, 700 feet; breadth, 77 feet; and draft of water, 34 feet.

The C. P. R. purchased this liner New York. She is a first, second ers in newer districts to secure cattle under government loans. Farmers are protected under another act from unscrupulous machinery and other contracts. A great deal of other similar legislation might be mentioned. The government in all its dealings has recognized that the future development of the province rests largely with the agricultural, live stock, and dairy interests, and has endeavored to encourage them to the full extent of its power.

In Interests of Women

Alberta women are especially favored. Alberta was the first province in Canada to grant equal provincial and municipal suffrage. A mother has equal rights with the father in their children. Married women have full control of their own property. Women have a special interest in the "Exemption from Seizures Ordinance," which protects the family home from seizure under execution. A widow's interest in her husband's estate, despite provisions in a will to the contrary, is also protected. Other legislation has been enacted for women. What more could the government have done for them?

Helping Rural Schools

The educational facilities in Alberta are on a high plane. In order to promote the efficiency and encourage the permanency of rural school teachers, the government pays one-third of the cost of building and furnishing the teacher's home. Consolidated schools, where they are desired, are aided by government grants. Where consolidation is impossible or is not desired, three times the usual grant is made to two-room schools, so that educational facilities may be largely increased. The educational opportunity of the child in the country is now more nearly equal to that of the child in the town or city, by reason of special legislation providing for high school education in the rural districts. The government believes in providing adequate educational facilities for even the most remote districts, so that the children of settlers miles from a railroad or settlements may have a start in life.
